

Flare Lorém works across sculpture, installation, and performance. Her practice develops through hausov null, her process-based research framework informing the creation of stainless-steel structures, found-object assemblages, and site-responsive actions located in architectural and urban contexts.